

SYSTEM AND METHOD FOR BIN MANAGEMENT

Abstract of the Disclosure

A raw material is stored in a storage container. The stored raw material is physically processed in the storage container to obtain a processed material based on the raw material. Link data is recorded for associating the raw material with the processed material across any transformation between the raw material and the processed material.